

Harnessing Bio-Energy

Lyle Loughry - October 2005

The significance of this article is that many of the exceptional nutritional supplements we offer are also "energy-infused" with Subtle-energy Technology, which sets them apart from even the best-selling, most popular, highly-recommended supplements you may be aware of, or may even be using. This is where "Ancient knowledge meets new science", for the benefit of your health.

Bio-energy has long been regarded as the life-sustaining force of the universe. One of Russia's leading researchers in quantum "radio-physics" (a scientist who is internationally known for his research on the nonlinear interaction of laser light with matter), has discovered a way to harness bio-energy, using the methodology and technology of modern physics. Following decades of research, this scientist, Yuri Kronn, Ph.D., and chief research scientist at Energy Tools International, and Present Vital Force-Technology, both California companies, developed a plasma-based computerized system that uses a low intensity alternating magnetic field for generating bio-energy. Dr. Kronn's technology then harnesses specific formulations of bio-energy and infuses them into "substance-carriers" that enhance the bioactivity of natural health products.

The energies emitted by the product formulas have been "mapped" and infused back into the original formulas. In addition, other selected specific energy patterns are chosen to support overall well-being, and to promote the overall harmonized effects of all the individual ingredients, and then infused back into the formula, thereby furthering the entire enhancement strategy. This process of "infusion" works in the same way a magnetic field can magnetize iron, wherein the iron becomes a source of the magnetic field. In the same way, when products are exposed to a bio-energetic field, using specialized equipment, the product becomes infused with that energy field, the result being increased performance.

These energy infusions "tune up" the entire body's energetic system that program the body functions on all levels; physiological, psychological and mental. This tune-up allows the body to rid itself of the causes of problems much faster and more effectively, instead of just treating "symptoms". According to Dr. Kronn, "appropriately energy-infused remedies are absorbed faster and are more effective in the body, especially that part of the body that is to receive the benefits from any particular formulation." The energies amount to a "chaperone" that moves the ingredients to where they are supposed to go, and thereby maximize their effectiveness. This unique infusion of specific "subtle-energy" frequencies transforms a great product into a truly extraordinary one.

Dr. Kronn began studying the possibility of infusing these energetic patterns into substances in the mid-1970's, based on the results of Chinese researchers who observed an influence of subtle energy on atomic nuclei. Their research demonstrated that slight changes of a nucleus under subtle energy's effect led to the formation of isomers with different energetic and bio-chemical properties. He found that the "chi" of this new isomer could enhance the properties of the substance, and left the substance with more energy than it had before infusion. The fact that infused substances continue to acquire properties for a very long time allows them to create a "chi delivery system", from technology to people.

According to Krystal Green, Ph.D., a biological practitioner in Tucson, AZ, "Dr. Kronn's infusion process is an energetic delivery system that works on the cellular level to infuse a substance into the body and get a problem corrected. The underlying principle of the infusion products is an extra energetic component that delivers more into the cells." Try them, you'll notice the difference.
